Duo Maddalena are otherwise known as mezzo soprano Lucy Green and soprano Janet Oates. The duo focus on three aspects of music, and their interactions. Namely, early music; contemporary classical music; and music by women composers. For each concert they invite friends and colleagues to join them. These guests provide historically informed accompaniment.

Represented by Emily Baines and Arngeir Hauksson, Amyas are a period instrument group specialising in exuberant performances of historical repertoire. As an authority in historically informed performance, the group range from the well-loved classics of the eighteenth century to electronic manipulation of medieval songs and dances – and everything in between!

Programme:

The members of the quartet met as teenagers and then again later at IMS Prussia Cove. After each completing their respective studies in London, New York, Paris and Helsinki they reunited as a quartet, sharing their passion for the extraordinary music written for this formation.

In February 2019, the quartet was awarded a residency at Snape Maltings where they worked on quartets by Schumann and Bartok, receiving masterclasses from Hungarian pianist Rita Wagner.

She has performed as a soloist with various orchestras playing with the LSO on a regular basis, under famous conductors such as Valery Gergiev and Sir Simon Rattle.

Dimitris Spouras is a conductor and clarinet player. He won the National Greek Conducting Competition and has conducted leading orchestras including the Stuttgarter Philharmoniker. As a clarinetist, he has played amongst others with the LSO under conductors such as Sir Simon Rattle, Daniel Harding and Gianandrea Noseda. In 2015 he founded The Antwerpen Camerata.

Galina Stamenova came to the attention of the musical world after winning the first prize in a competition organised by the LSO & Shell Oil Co. That prize gave her the opportunity, at the age of 19, to play at The Royal Festival with Andre Previn and the LSO. It was at a master class at the South Bank Summer Music Festival that she attracted the attention of Isaac Stern. With his help, Galina came to the Juilliard school to study with Dorothy DeLay.
